

DIGITAL ID WORLD

Speaker FAQ

Who speaks at Digital ID World Conferences?

Industry analysts, vendors, subject matter experts and featured end-users.

What are the responsibilities of a Digital ID World speaker?

All speakers must:

1. Submit a speaker request form: <http://www.didw.com/conference/2002/speakers.html>.
2. Attend the conference for the entire day on which they speak.
3. Submit their presentation at least 1 day in advance to the conference organizer

What are the criteria for selecting speakers?

Digital ID World Conference organizers select speakers first and foremost based upon their knowledge and expertise of the subject matter and secondly on their speaking experience and reputation within the community. The Digital ID World conference is designed to expand people's boundaries and provide a 360 degree view of the digital identity landscape, providing them with better insight and understanding of the dynamics, motivations and trends of this emerging industry. We therefore seek to obtain the best and most insightful content from a wide variety of areas which are all directly or indirectly impacting this emerging technology.

How does one apply for a speaking position?

Complete the Digital ID World Conference Speaker Submission Form. Forms are posted on the web-site approximately 6 months before the conference.

When do we notify selected speakers?

Conference organizers will begin notifying speakers via email in May.

Are there other participation opportunities?

Vendors can participate by hosting a table or booth in the exhibit hall and through other sponsorship opportunities. Please contact sales@digitalidworld.com for more information.

Who are the conference attendees?

Digital ID World provides an environment in which enterprises, service providers, financial institutions, government officials and vendors can have meaningful interaction on the issues and future of the digital identity industry. Attendees consist of CEO's, CTO's, CIO's, senior architects, privacy and security officers, product development and marketing managers, senior IT managers, industry analysts, pundits, visionaries and personalities shaping the identity space.

Questions?

If you have questions about conference, please contact sales@digitalidworld.com.